

MJ MOPERA

Author, screenwriter, and filmmaker... MJ Mopera first realized his debut science fiction novel, BUZZism: Beyond, as a completed screenplay... then as a series of screenplays for which Beyond the novel might eventually kickstart a series of BUZZism movies based on the novel itself and the screenplay installments.

Mopera received a Bachelor's Degree in Film Production from California State University, Northridge (CSUN) where screenwriting was part of the required curriculum. While attending CSUN Mopera co-directed the student film and conspiracy thriller, Guinea Pigs, which later received a Certificate of Merit at the Chicago International Film Festival.

Mopera was living on the CSUN campus during the 1994 earthquake while sixteen people died in an apartment complex just off campus less than a mile from where he was. Being in the epicenter of a major earthquake and surviving it was the most harrowing experience of his life. Mopera ended up editing a student documentary film about life on campus after the earthquake called After the Shocks.

Prior to devoting himself to a career in writing, Mopera was a public relations/marketing executive in Los Angeles in the entertainment industry.

Mopera became an avid strategist of the e*trade mobile app when he realized that implementing his strategy for just minutes a day could actually free up more time for writing as opposed to working a regular 9 to 5 job.

Mopera, who was born in Tucson, Arizona and is of Filipino descent, currently resides in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

For more information about the BUZZism movie series concept, visit <https://buzzfx.net>.

###

contact@buzzfx.net