Local Author's Novel Release May Eventually Impact Local Movie Industry.

Virginia Beach -- Local Hampton Roads author, screenwriter and filmmaker, MJ Mopera, just came out with his first sci-fi novel, BUZZism: Beyond. Not only is Mopera a local author, but a number of Hampton Roads locations are featured in his Beyond novel. Mopera hopes to eventually kick off a series of movies based on the novel. Hampton Roads would be featured prominently in the first installment of the movie series, BUZZism: Sands of Winter, for which there is already a completed screenplay.

Mopera has lived in Virginia Beach since 2004, moving briefly back to Los Angeles from 2012 to 2014. Prior to moving to Virginia Beach in 2004, Mopera was a publicity/marketing executive in Los Angeles in the entertainment industry for major clients.

“This novel may eventually have an impact on the local economy,” stated MJ Mopera.

About the novel, BUZZism Beyond:

John Doe is the creator of a Virtual Reality/Sensory Deprivation (VRSD) chamber, the OmniSyn 2.0, that can facilitate time travel via the internet. John Doe tries to regain his memory and identity while being hunted down with his own invention. The present and future intertwine as John Doe's would-be assassin, Cameron, closes in on his objective. All the while, a mind war is being waged that, in the future, takes on the form of a global nuclear holocaust caused by a terrorist group known only as Noxius. The internet, a virtual and multi-dimensional wasteland, becomes the battlefield where battles are waged for hearts and minds... but mostly minds.
